

Abstract

The invention is an improved locked-center idler of the type having a pulley supported by a bearing. The bearing is mounted upon a tension adjusting member. It is improved by the tension adjusting member being in communication with a dual function 5 fastener.